

VISIONARIES THRIVE IN ALL TIMES

As creators, our dominion is the place between and among the molecules of time and space. As a species with newfound free will, we chart our course into the cosmos aligned with Spirit and Innate Intelligence. After all, we are Spirit clothed in bodies beginning to consciously get it right. We learn about the tools available to us, and we adventure far out above the limitations of anger, pride, ignorance and greed. Our momentum becomes our bodies as we feed off of the newfound habitual patterns that we have set into motion for ourselves. We venture out among the stars and harmonics of the Universe that were once beyond our imaginings.

Momentum becomes our body, and vision and resonance become our navigation, as we align with Innate Intelligence and become more. Our habitual patterns of reality creation become useful, having been elevated to the positive side of the equation as we experience realms well beyond the intent of courage, as referenced by Dr. Hawkins' calibrated Map of Consciousness. As we review the map, 220 is exponentially far greater than a 20-point jump from 200; 540 is almost incalculably greater than 500; and enlightenment is far, far beyond at 700 and above. There are many realms to explore.

We swarm as individuals aligned to the Light. For at some point, it is perceived as safe to make that final journey inward and upward.

As we teach the mind to serve us and maintain reality creation in the custom of our newfound, open-ended, habitual outpourings, we experience the higher-octaves of consciousness. We become complete, carrying our “servo-mental” mechanisms along for the maintenance of our momentum, as we learn how to subtly “just add.” It turns out that the journey is well worth the effort, as our visionary mode sets itself for new and distant horizons. We become comfortable with our “new skin,” as well as our propulsion and navigation.

We consciously climb the scale of our own evolution and our place in the cosmos. After all, it can be assumed that enlightened masters have always had access to perceptions and values far in excess of the values of humanity with little under its hood.¹ As we discover our Divinity, we see it to be an automatic and self-fulfilling system of success, understanding and knowing. Once we usefully harness our habitual loop and feedback system, we begin to resonate with the trees melding and feeding with the sky, planets spawning from central suns and a cosmic smile that is our knowing in all of its totality. Our newfound momentum becomes our new plateau and the next step in our evolution as we review and plot our next experience, all the while climbing Dr. Hawkins' Map of Consciousness. We begin to wonder what might lie beyond 1,000.

We swarm as individuals aligned to the Light. Some first and then others, for at some point it is perceived as safe to make that final journey inward and upward. We accept that we are able to become more, and, where we once refused to step and then gingerly stepped, we gravitate with the enthusiasm of young children, for we have become young again as we lay at our side values and perceptions that no longer serve us. We become wide-eyed at the possibilities as we accept our potential as something we innately know so well. We see that we are coming home bigger than when we began our trip into descendency, alive with the awareness that we are becoming more and renewed in our true connection with Source. We master Freewill² and we master intentionality as we come to have dominion over our affairs. We become more.

First a few and then more, and eventually the last make that fateful realization that resistance to our true nature in no way serves us. We become what Innate Intelligence has always been telling us is our outcome – a spiritually alert, alive and awake species on Earth. We become more. Gaia has birthed a cosmic outcome in free will, exceeding anything that the plant, animal, mineral kingdoms or nature could ever produce on its own.

We see the order of creation for which we finally take our rightful place. We meld with transparency into a world of love and peace and order that knows no bounds. We become more. We become expressions and outpourings of something that is ancient, yet ever different, as we continue to refine our individuality. Yes, we are far different than we imagined but fully individual, with Innate Intelligence streaming from our eyes, our creations and our choices. We become an expanded expression of Source and free will – a new species radiating with the conscious awareness of a job well done.

We continue to expand as the most advanced outpouring of creation, marrying and integrating consciousness on a scale that is undreamt except by that still, small voice. We become that seed we carried within our genes and our unconscious mind, that potential that some always spoke and knew – something that was always innate, something our mind becomes harnessed to uncover, as we survey our horizon for our next possibilities.

We come into alignment with our true nature because it is our heritage and a promise that was always available to us. We rely on gratitude and an awareness of our surroundings in wholly newfound ways. And we trust our brothers as they sort themselves out at their own recollection and speed. We realize that in our awakening en masse – a few at first, and then more and more – our planet becomes a host and a home in all new imaginings.

Our aspirations and journeys become travels to and from our solar system for which we can always find our way back, for the resonance of our home planet is powerfully strong. Our solar system and its planets sing in a unison that is unmistakable in its clarity as we vision forth among the vistas of space and time, knowing our bearings and our way back. It turns out that the ancients knew more about comings and goings and alignment with the cosmos than we were able to discern as we toiled in the misunderstanding of our past.

The cosmos is our true home. It is ours to range within and through and above and beyond as we discover the harmonics of the space between the atoms and the planets. We are drawn to new frequencies of resonance and time and space as we discover yet another aspect of our journey. Learning and experiencing are just beginning for us. As we sense the possibilities in entirely new ways of listening and feeling, we begin a migration toward newfound order running through our nervous system and the circuitry that is our intelligence. We have learned to expand and accommodate the discoveries of our home cosmos and sphere. Eventually we discover that there are multitudes of realms and that our journeys are just beginning. And, just like in the old days, we refine our awareness of our surroundings and we head out again and again.

We meld with benevolence and love, as well as the technologies of choice, alignment and free will, and we become more. Wherever we travel, explore and make our presence known, life blossoms. Our invisible tendrils encourage life to new experiences, as we discover we are truly part of creation. Life begets life; we accept our heritage; and the Universe expands. In our capacity to align with the harmonics of Universal Forces, we discover our very being. We discover we are an essential cog in the expansion and expression of life in the cosmic realms.

We find newfound compassion, trust and unconditional love for life – all of life. We have compassion, joy and trust for the struggles of younger and lesser experienced life forms, valiantly striving to become their own – on their own. We begin to see the mastery of truth and order, and, in its expansion and growth, we see that it continues to be truth and order. As visionaries aligned with truth, we see that we are in our rightful place at our rightful time. All is well above and below and upon Earth and our home-based connection with the cosmos.
