

The Great Equalizer

There remains one other matter with regard to focus, and it can make anyone the equal of any experienced city council or experienced and savvy promoter/developer. As we learn to become quieter in our minds, we discover that we have access to Innate Intelligence and corresponding insights. These insights come in the form of feelings and, as we have thought or focus, we always have an associated corresponding feeling.

Based on the quality of the feeling associated with our focus, or even the initial first thought, we always know the appropriateness of that thought or focus as an eventual reality. The higher the quality of feeling associated with our thought, the closer we are to our optimal capacity to create. If our focus is off-track and we disregard the “warnings” associated with our corresponding thoughts, we might find ourselves – in several days, several months or several years or a whole lifetime – with a train wreck at our feet, for which we had ample warning.

Thought, combined with feeling, tells us everything we need to know about creating our realities. Through the power of the underlying nature of reality, the power that keeps the planets from bumping into each other, the sun coming up every day, and tomatoes consistently coming from tomato seeds, our capacity for alignment with higher purpose is readily available to us. It is in the listening to our inner nature that our success has always shone. It is in our capacity for thought combined with compelling information from Source that we, as Team HomoSapien™, continue our evolution and learn to create in alignment within an order that is much larger than we readily understand.

It is through listening and feeling that we create our realities with quality and intention. If we can access that quiet place in our mind, if we can have insight into the quality of what we think, we can vastly increase our lot in life. It is important to note that humanity, the only species on the planet with free will, is finally beginning to discover its innate inheritance – en masse. It is also true that humanity has been listening to its inner nature since the beginning of time. As we evolve into the comforts that come from just beyond basic survival, making use of the tools available to us, we begin to approach our potential.

It is important to note that any sort of reality, be it a stadium with lights blazing into the night sky, a grocery list, or a first date leading to marriage and children, begins with a first thought and a first feeling. According to the Abraham teachings, a thought purely held engenders and draws to it another thought, similar and more powerful, for which a corresponding feeling accompanies it. Those two thoughts held purely will attract an exponentially more powerful thought, for which there is always corresponding insight as feeling.

We are creators and we have insight available to us at every step of the way. Thought is generated; Innate Intelligence responds; and reality comes to exist. And, it is in the care and feeding of our thoughts, as well as listening to the insight made available by Innate Intelligence, that our realities grow and flourish in a more useful manner.

On the other hand, it is obvious that a painful or a ho-hum feeling is a warning about a thought or focus out of alignment with our highest good. And often, we will go to great effort to dismiss the lack of resonance (dissonance), or feelings of pain and disharmony, which become increasingly louder as we continue to attempt to force outcomes or generate realities at odds with Innate Intelligence and our inner nature. Eventually, we learn about alignment and the ease with which we can live our lives.

If we were surprised at the size of the train wreck at the end of the ordeal, we would find the corresponding dissonance from Innate Intelligence to be a match. If we were to heed the still, small voice telling us of the quality of our thoughts and focus early on, we could revise our thoughts and choose our focus (and outcomes) with more
